P-TA Vs. Sexy Books

P. O. Box 4412
Carmel, California
January 5, 1960.

Editor, the Pine Cone:

On the front page of your December 31, 1959 edition, you published a news story regarding the Carmel Elementary Parent-Teachers Association and their start of a "campaign for legislation to curtail newsstand paperback books and magazines with bawdy cover art and salacious reading matter."

There are a few things that these very well-intentioned people ought to know about, before they start.

1st. That this problem is not entirely new and that this type of book and magazine has already had some campaigns centered around them.

2nd. That the lower courts sustained the arrest and conviction of a New York bookdealer for selling a cheap and sensational magazine. This case took eight years to decide and was argued three times before the courts. The United States Supreme Court finally by a vote of 6 to 3, reversed the lower courts and outlawed the New York statute as unconstitutional. This decision made it plain that they held that magazines dealing with crime, violence, and lust could not be declared illegal because of the factors.

3rd. Following the above decision, came the great boom in paperback books and magazines, which has created much controversy. As we know, some of these have dealt in sadism, terror, sex, crime, brutality, juvenile gangsterism and so on.

4th. That several national ecclesiastical committees have been set up to evaluate and censor these books and magazines and through them some good has been done, but one of the objections to the above committees, was that in these campaigns, they have overstepped. In some instances, there has been indiscriminate censoring of worthwhile publications.

5th. That while adults are prone to pounce on the books available to children, they fail to see that the literary tastes of the adult generation often delights in something far worse than that which they condemn in the paperback books and magazines. In other words, a great inconsistency in who should read what, but not in what is being read. Adult critics of books and magazines for juveniles, often live in glass houses.

6th. That the legal remedies being apparently stalemated as they are, the solution, as Senator Farr so ably points out, would best be "moral suasion." Voluntary re-

COUNCIL MEETING FRIDAY

Carmel city council will hold a special meeting Friday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock to decide whether or not to give Harrison Godwin permission to remove two city pines which are in the way of a proposed exit from his parking lot at Monte Verde and Sixth.

The council will also study a report on group health insurance.

City Offers $15,500 Less Than Asking Price For 3 Civic Center Lots

August Nieto, who represents Mrs. Arthur White in the sale of three lots on Mission between Fourth and Fifth Streets, adjoining the city corporation yard, looked grim last night when the city council authorized a committee of Councilmen Allen Knight and James Buffington to buy the property for $59,500, the value set by local appraisers.

Mayor Appoints 4 To Recreation, Forest Commission

The city council approved three appointments to the newly reorganized recreation commission last night and one to the forest commission.

Former City Councilman and Street Commissioner Gene Ricketts will serve on the forest commission in place of City Councilman and Street Commissioner Jim Buffington. Buffington, on his request, was relieved by amendment of the city ordinance, which formerly required the street commissioner to serve.

The council approved the school board's nomination of George Yates to the recreation commission, and supported Mayor John Chitwood's recommendation of Elwood Wilson and August Nieto.

Mr. Nieto had offered the lots to the city for $75,000 and had engaged Architect George Wilcox to draw plans to show how the city could utilize the combined properties for a civic center. He had no comment to make to the council, during session, on the $15,500 less than asking price offer, but observed to the Pine Cone:

"She'll sell them tomorrow to someone else for $75,000. This releases me. I've done what I could for the city."

The council authorized Knight and Buffington to offer Mrs. White $3,000 more if she leaves the house on the lots. The council wants six years in which to pay for the property and anticipates it can be done out of current revenue without resorting to bond issue, dipping into the reserve fund or sale of city real property.

In approving the purchase, the council did not "earmark" the lots

Bucky Fuller Of Geodesic Dome Will Give His Ideas Of Planning For Peninsula In Lecture Tonight

BY VIRGINIA SHAW

"You don't pin Bucky down; you just turn him on, sit down, and let yourself be fascinated by the way his mind works," remarked a long-time friend of R. Buckminster Fuller.

"Bucky" Fuller, who is best described as a "comprehensive designer," is considered by many as one of the most farsighted and truly creative minds of our time. Throughout his career—which has encompassed the fields of engineering, architecture, industry, research, mathematics and philosophy, not to mention writing, teaching and lecturing throughout the world—he has translated his extraordinary ideas into structures which have been at least a generation ahead of their time.

Typical of Fuller's advanced thinking is the "geodesic dome," a concept he began working on in 1917 and one which demonstrates his search for the most efficient solution employing the least materials. It took 30 years for Fuller's dome to find acceptance beyond that of a handful of architects and engineers. Today over 1000 of the domes dot the earth from Afghanistan to Alaska, ranging in size and function from a 384 foot-diameter roundhouse in St. Louis—the largest clear-span dome ever built in the world—to individual Marine Corps shelters. Most notable was the dome which housed the American exhibit in Moscow last summer.

This week, Mr. Fuller is participating in a unique experiment in community planning on the Peninsula. In the past four days, he has been introduced to each of its cities, exposed to its scenery and geography, and has participated in "seminar conversations" with most of its public officials, planners, architects, engineers and other citizens concerned with its future.

The idea has been, simply, to let this brilliant and constructive thinker absorb as much of the Peninsula as possible, and then to "turn him on" to analyze and predict the present and future patterns of the community as he sees them.

The ideas and impressions Mr. Fuller has accumulated in the experiment will be incorporated into a lecture he will present tonight at 8:15 o'clock in King Hall at the Naval Postgraduate School. His talk is open to the public without charge.

"We don't expect Bucky to come up with any of the usual answers, or maybe not any answers at all," says David Walton, chairman of the Citizens' Planning Association which is one of the sponsors of Fuller's visit. "We have no idea what he'll come up with . . . but we're sure it will be tremendously stimulating to any thinking about the future of the Peninsula."

We managed to corner R. (for Richard) Buckminster Fuller for a short while between seminars at the Pebble Beach home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. Arch Butts Jr. with whom he is staying. He was dressed, as is his invariable custom, in a dark blue suit, white shirt and bow tie. Mr. Fuller is a short, neat man of 65 with close-cropped silver hair, wearing thick-lensed glasses (efficiently secured around his head by an elastic band) and a

Public Debate Mon. On Fenton Gasoline Station

The hotly controversial proposed Fenton Plaza gasoline station is scheduled for debate at a general meeting of the Carmel Citizens Committee Monday night at 8:00 o'clock in Sunset School Cafeteria.

The Committee, which now has a membership of 350, invites the public to attend.

Lewis Fenton and Olaf Dahlstrand will speak for the gas pumps; Carl Patnude, former city councilman, represents the opposition.

Fenton is an attorney and Dahlstrand, architect for Leslie Fenton, owner of the block bounded by Ocean Avenue, Junipero, Seventh and Mission Streets. Buildings to house I. Magnin, Bank of America and Sambo's Pancake House are now in construction on the Ocean Avenue frontage.

The debate arises out of Leslie Fenton's second attempt to gain approval of plans for a gas station on a parking facility on the Mission, Seventh Street area of the property.

Gas stations are not a permitted use in that part of town but the city zoning ordinance allows non-permitted uses if they are "accessory." The Carmel Planning Commission decided that the gas station was an accessory use when Fenton representatives presented plans for an underground garage and gas station last spring. The city council in a three to two vote overruled planning commission's decision when it was appealed. Fenton dropped the underground garage project when the gas station was denied him.

Last month A. W. Clark, Fenton representative, applied to the planning commission for a ruling on a gas station on a proposed parking

Dr. Herrick First Holder Of White Chair At Mills

Mills College honored Dr. Francis H. Herrick yesterday by naming the distinguished historian, research scholar and part-time Carmel resident as the first holder of the newly-endowed chair honoring former Mills president, Dr. Lynn White Jr.

Dr. Herrick was awarded the Lynn White Jr. Professorship at formal presentation ceremonies conducted by C. Easton Rothwell, Mills College president, before an all-campus assembly of faculty and students in the Mills Concert Hall.

The successful completion of a campaign to raise $250,000 to establish the chair was announced by the board of trustees of Mills College in February, 1958. This is the largest endowment ever raised by Mills College. Contributions were received from the Mills trustees, faculty, alumnae, corporations and friends of the college.

The chair may be shifted from one field of teaching to another. It was thought fitting, however, to have the first holder an historian in honor of Dr. White's interest in medieval history.

Dr. Herrick has been a member of the Mills faculty since 1926. He will hold the Lynn White Jr. chair until he retires in 1966, at which

CARMEL CAGERS AT LIVE OAK

FRIDAY NIGHT

Carmel High puts its top position in the CCAL B-division hoop chase on the line at Live Oak High tomorrow night where the Padres engage the Acorns in a league triple-header. The Padre varsity is currently locked up with King City as co-leaders of the league and need the win over Live Oak to go into next week's crucial with the Mustangs on an even-up basis. Coach Dan Yurkovich's charges have posted convincing wins over San Lorenzo and Gonzales so far this season while the Acorns have dropped decisions to Pacific Grove and King City. More noted for their basketball prowess than for their activities on the gridiron, the Live Oak hoopsters have always been dangerous foes and the enthusiasm for the hardwood sport is high on the Acorn campus. Carmel's varsity is fresh off a sparkling performance against the classy Monterey High quintet and deserves to be favored in tomorrow night's tilt. Carmel's starting five will be John Wilkin and Russ Wise, forwards; Fred Bucher and Mike Draper, guards; and Chris Wilkin at the pivot spot.

Coach Dick Lawitzke's junior-varsity crew takes on the Acorn jayvees in a 5:30 opener tomorrow night while Hadley Hick's lightweight squad tries the Little Acorns in a 7:00 o'clock tussle.

PADRES LOSE TRIPLE-HEADER TO MONTEREY HOOPSTERS

Although making a fight of it all the way and leading at several stages of the game, Carmel High's varsity basketball squad finally bowed to the superior jumping and shooting ability of the Monterey Toreadores and were snowed under by last minute baskets to lose the verdict, 58 to 49. The Padres remained in contention until the final quarter as Russ Wise, Mike Draper, and Chris Wilkin matched the clever shooting of Monterey's Bob Jensen and Mel Mason. The high-jumping Toreadores maintained an edge in the rebounding department throughout the game but the tenacious Padre defense made the hosts take their shots from the outside. Chris Wilkin and Mike Draper were especially effective on defense, Chris blocking numerous Toreador shots and little Mike harrying the Monterey ball-handlers into making erratic passes.

At the half-time intermission the Toreadores were in front, 28 to 25, and they were forced to scramble to earn the three-point margin. Midway of third quarter, the Padres forged in front, 41 to 40, and were threatening to take the game away from the favored Toreadores. However, Jensen and Mason took charge at this point, and gradually pulled away for a comfortable win. Bob Jensen, Monterey shooting star, was the best player the Padres have faced this season and his 32 points more than kept the Toreadores in the game. Russ Wise led the Carmel scorers with 15 points, Mike Draper had 11 as he pumped in one field goal and made good on 9 free throws, and Chris Wilkin picked up 10 points on garbage under the basket.

Carmel's junior-varsity lost its first game of the current campaign as the Monterey jayvees put on a terrific last quarter surge to clip Coach Lawitzke's gang, 34 to 29. As in the varsity tilt, the jayvees were in contention all the way but ran out of gas in the final heat. With Scott Forbes leading the way, the Padre jayvees stormed back from a 16-12 halftime deficit to knot the count early in the final

Enrollment at Carmel High School was increased by one pupil after the Christmas holidays. Twelve new students enrolled when classes started on Monday but eleven students withdrew during December, according to Warren Edwards, High School principal.

This week students seeking student body offices are circulating petitions. These will be returned this afternoon, approved by the student council tomorrow. Election campaigns will run through January 11-14 with voting for new officers to take place on January 15.

Architect Fuller To Lecture On Planning Tonight

(Continued from Page One) cheerful expression—a quick, beaming grin frequently tweaks up his otherwise serious, intent face. He seemed in fine spirits; a cold had bothered him when he first arrived here ("I rely so much on my intuitions, and they just don't function properly when I'm not feeling perfectly well"), but Tuesday morning found him keenly anticipating the day's meetings with faculty members at MPC, students from Cal Poly and local architects and engineers.

"I'm really tremendously interested in this experiment," he began. "If we take the trouble to research our experience and come to any conclusions which are different from other thinking, then these conclusions should be translated into some rearrangement of the physical universe. This is the very opposite of political or social reform, where people are persuaded by the destructive pressure of words misused. The word is man's most important tool; the first continuous man was the one who discovered the ability to communicate, just as the first discontinuous man was the one who discovered he could throw a rock."

"Continuous man" is a favorite theme of Fuller's, and by it he means the man who subconsciously partakes of generalized principles of experience.)

"Continuous man is an extraordinary fellow!" beamed Fuller, going full speed ahead. "He is made up of 14 billion atoms in action; he is a non-conscious design success in spite of his ignorance and vanity! We must look on ourselves as coordinated designs; human design reflects the comprehensive design of the universe, which operates on principles of interactions and coordinates. One of our greatest lacks today is philosophers, who treat of combined behaviors; the specialist doesn't feel called upon to be a philosopher. The great men of history have been the objective scientists who have translated their discoveries into action."

Fuller himself has been translating discoveries into action for over 40 years. His "comprehensive anticipatory design science" has resulted in such achievements as the geodesic domes—now recognized as the lightest, cheapest, strongest means of enclosing spaces of any size, the bigger the better—as well as his "Dymaxion House," developed in 1927, a mass-produced, prefabricated "machine for living." (Fuller also worked out a Dymaxion Car, which he says was ultimately intended to be a multi-directional flying machine. Only three prototype models were produced of the car—a three-wheeler with front drive and rear-steer—and one of them was owned by Jake Butts, who sold it when he left Wichita after the war, and who would dearly like to recover it now.)

Bucky Fuller's nonstop flow of ideas continued en route to the seminar at the college. "Everything in the universe is in continuous motion," he observed. "Everything moves in the direction of least resistance—I've discovered 12 alternate directions of equally economical resistance. Resistances can be altered so delicately! Think of the rudder of a ship: what a powerful discovery! When I was asked to come here, I hoped I could cut down some of the nonsensical resistances between people and perhaps alter some of the old directions and reflexes. I would like to feel that I will leave this community free to move spontaneously in a good direction, even without plan."

Fuller has encountered little resistance, much enthusiasm in the groups with whom he has met so far. Though he has avoided becoming involved in discussion of specific Peninsula problems, he has indicated some of his ideas about what he's been shown here. He believes the Peninsula will become one of the country's great research centers: "This is one of the rare, rare places on the face of the earth," he said Tuesday night. "Your intuitions must tell you that world man is going to be jealous of his few beautiful places, and will want to come here."

Repeated expressions of concern about the freeway and interchange brought an optimistic response from Mr. Fuller: "It's not irreparable, even though it does suggest getting all dressed up with nowhere to go. You mustn't become preoccupied with it; there are much greater things to think about." "But," he mused, "I can understand how you feel about it; I've only one daughter, and I'd be sorry to find she was tattooed."

The effects of Bucky Fuller's visit will continue beyond his open lecture tonight. Professor Wesley Ward's architectural students from Cal Poly, who are spending the week here, will develop Fuller's ideas concerning the Peninsula as their senior semester project; the results of their project will be shown here later in the year. The Citizens' Planning Association will also work on applying his theories and suggestions to specific planning problems.

But the best long-range effect of the experiment was probably indicated by an architect who remarked happily after Tuesday night's session, "Bucky's pulled us clear out of the rut and given us enough fresh ideas to keep us stimulated indefinitely!"

Dr. Herrick First Holder Of White Chair At Mills

(Continued from Page One) time he plans to make his home here permanently. Dr. Herrick's new title at Mills is the Lynn White Jr. Professor of European History. He also serves as chairman of the Mills College department of history and government and is convener of the school of humanities.

Dr. Herrick is a Rhodes scholar and a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He holds degrees from Western Reserve University, the University of Wisconsin, Oxford University and Yale University. His special field of study is nineteenth century British Party history.

Currently Dr. Herrick is president of the Pacific Coast Conference on British Studies and vice president of the Pacific Coast branch of the American Historical Association. He has just completed a three-year term as a member of the commission on membership and standards of the Western College Association.

Dr. Herrick's wife, Mariam, a Mills College graduate, received some of her early education in Carmel. Her mother, Mrs. Sarah White was one of the first teachers at Sunset School. Her father, the Reverend Willis White, a retired Presbyterian minister, was the founder of the Carmel Kite Festival. When Dr. Herrick retires, he and Mrs. Herrick plan to occupy the White family home at Camino Real and Ninth Avenue.

They have three children, Mrs. Durward Francis Slater who lives in Monterey, a younger daughter, Margaret, who is a freshman at Occidental College, and a son, Charles, who has just left to complete his senior year at Dartmouth College in New Hampshire.

P-TA Vs. Sexy Paperback Books

(Continued from Page One) form seems to be the best method, because the Senate Subcommittee to investigate juvenile delinquency, headed by Senator Estes Kefauver reported in 1955—"this country cannot afford the calculated risk involved in feeding its children through comic books; a concentrated diet of crime, horror, and violence," but also stated further, "the subcommittee flatly rejects all suggestions of governmental censorship as being totally out of keeping with our basic American concept of a free press operating in a free land for a free people."

The foregoing information was the result of my recent interest in "The Right to Read" by Paul Blanshard and published by the Beacon Press of Boston, Mass., in 1955, a copy of which is in our Harrison Memorial Library.

It is my sincere hope that this letter will be of some small assistance to the P-TA in their admirable and forthright move to help control a very serious problem in our generation.

Very truly yours,
Charles W. Merrifield.

Chamber Music Society Invites Composers To Forum On Tuesday

The Chamber Music Society of Carmel with its executive committee, consisting of Gilbert Boyer, director, Lloyd Clapper, and Philippe Buhler, opens its fifth season with a Composers' Forum meeting to which all active composers in the area are invited. The meeting will be held at Mr. Boyer's residence on Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Any composer or interested person please telephone MA 4-3347.

It has been the policy of the Chamber Music Society to perform several works a season by qualified local composers. This policy will be continued and in addition a portion of rehearsal time will be allotted to the playing of experimental or finished compositions by California or other western composers. A small chamber orchestra and smaller combinations will be available for that purpose.

The object of the Composers' Forum will be: To listen to each other's compositions and discuss mutual problems; To promote performances of worthwhile contemporary works; To encourage composers in the area and assist them in any way possible.

Following are some of the works of Monterey Peninsula composers performed at the Carmel Chamber Music Society's concerts, many being first performances: Philippe Buhler's Concertino for Piano and Chamber Orchestra; Lorell McCann's Romantic Poem for Viola and Piano; L. Podberesky's Theme and Variations for Flute and Sonata for Violin and Piano, Op. 21; and Hascal Stewart's Three Impressions for Flute, Violin, Cello and Piano, also her songs, Three Walks, and others.

Composers may bring tapes of performances of their works to the meeting, as hi-fi equipment is available. Also compositions are not restricted to chamber music media. Any solo, ensemble, orchestral, choral or other compositions will be discussed and promoted.

CHRISTMAS TREE PICK-UP

Starting at 9:00 o'clock on Saturday morning, Carmel High students will pick up and cart away discarded Christmas trees. Persons wishing to dispose of trees should place them where they are visible from the street. A small donation, in envelopes attached to trees, will be appreciated. Funds so collected will be applied to the Carmel Permanent Scholarship Fund. Further information may be obtained by telephoning MA 4-1821.

The council passed a resolution of appreciation for the services of John E. Abernethy who retired last month after serving 12 years as a member of the library board, three and a half years of which he was chairman.

His service to the library and the community has been distinguished by conscientious, vigorous and enterprising leadership . . . Under Mr. Abernethy's guidance, the outstanding cultural characteristics and public service of the library have been continuously extended and enhanced to the benefit and prestige of the community . . . therefore . . . the city council commends John E. Abernethy for his exemplary service, for his quiet and courageous adherence to principle and for the rich endowment of public service with which he leaves us."

Since there were no protests during the public hearings the council held first reading of three ordinances: continuation of the interim zoning ordinance for six months; an ordinance establishing park and parking classifications in the zoning ordinance; and an amendment to the municipal code which requires plans for lodging house alterations or additions must meet with approval of the planning commission.

When City Clerk Larry Rose reported a six-year decline in the number of lodging house permits from 54 to 33, the council instructed Building Inspector Floyd Adams to check with lodging house proprietors who might have forgotten to get a permit or are not aware that they are required.

SNOW, MORE SNOW, AND A REPORT

Superintendent of Schools Stuart Mitchell reports that Christmas holiday skiing at Yosemite was disappointing, not enough snow. Skis were scratched on the runs and after one attempt on the course, veteran skier Mr. Mitchell confined his activities to the Bunny Run where there was more snow.

However, Lloyd Miller, who went to Yosemite for the New Year's holiday, reports that conditions have improved.

Francis Whitaker, another ski buff, is circulating a 1949 Sierra Club bulletin which predicts that California will have low snow this year. The article, based on cycle observations over a long period of years, predicted annual snowfall for California which has not missed more than ten percent in ten years. Snow forecast for Donner Summit this year is 174 inches. Compiler of the report is Weldon Head.

Mrs. Damianakes

Mrs. Frances Damianakes died on Monday morning in a local hospital after an illness of several months. She came to live in Carmel two and a half years ago with her husband, Peter Damianakes. Her home was on Casanova Street near Tenth Avenue.

Mrs. Damianakes was born in San Francisco. Her parents were the late Wilson and Anne Baily, members of a pioneer San Francisco family. She was educated in the San Francisco schools then became associated with Hale Bros. department store, first in San Francisco, later in Oakland when Hale Bros. bought Whitthorne and Swan department store. During her over 50 years' association with Hale Bros., Mrs. Damianakes was a buyer and executive and made frequent business trips to New York. She lived in Piedmont before moving to Carmel.

Survivors are her husband in Carmel and a cousin, Albert Baily of Santa Rosa.

Dr. K. Fillmore Gray, pastor of the Church of the Wayfarer, officiated at funeral services for Mrs. Damianakes yesterday afternoon in the Paul Funeral Chapel.

JOURNEY FOR A DAUGHTER

To understand a little girl
I travel back in memory,
Farther than any other mind
Or any other eyes can see.

Past cotton stockings, middy blouses,
To mudpie mix and pinnafores,
I walk through corridors of time.
I dare to open dusty doors.

At last I find the child I was Playing in some lost design;
She turns toward me and wondrously
I am her child and she is mine.

—B. JO KINNICK

NO OTHER FLOWER

No other flower offers thought so white,
And mirrors purity untouched and new,
As water-lilies, opening to the light,
Cup age-old splendor for new worlds to view.

No other flower despairs the soil, to drift
On silver surface of a cool lagoon;
Perfuming day, yet as the sun may shift,
Veiling its petaled white from a rising moon.

No other flower departs with so much grace
When Autumn whispers it is time to go.
Of lily bud and leaf there is no trace
When waters tingle with the taste of snow.

—EMILY BOURNE

LOST RECORD

The place where once the cottage stood
Is now a pile of splintered wood
And secrets lodged within the grain
Whispers of love, the cries of pain,
Are scattered.
When men through science find the key
To open wood and set sounds free,
Waves here recorded in wood cell
Will be as though the record fell
And shattered.

—HELEN E. CROCKETT

THE WAY OF THE WIND IN THE GRASS

O where is the wind that plays in the grass
The wind that frolics wherever I pass,
I have searched the hilltops high in the dawn
But never have found where the wind has gone.
The wind that lifts through the grass at dusk
Scatters the seeds from the tall gold husk;
O where is the wind—the wind at play
That sweeps through the grass on a cold fall day,
In ribbons of wonder right at my feet
O wind that is ever and ever more fleet—
Swirling and tossing the grass in delight
From the break of morn till the closing of night.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Here we are with another fresh new year, another chance to make a name for ourselves, to learn something interesting, to remember what our parents taught us and try to live up to it. And the smallest and most pleasant resolution you can make is to read more good books from the Carmel Library!

Richard Dillon is librarian of Sutro Library in San Francisco, and in his spare time he writes. His latest to be published is a book entitled Embarcadero, which is a collection of true tales of adventures in and around the Port of San Francisco. The pictures are fascinating, the stories well told, the book is one to own as well as borrow from the library. We have two copies so come one, come all.

We are still in the warm-up period of preparing for the centennial of the American Civil War, but we are besieged with books on the subject, and our latest is one by James Montgomery. It is called The Shaping of the Battle: Gettysburg. The author says that in this book he has attempted a picture in the round of this great battle. Civil War buffs take notice.

Some people just naturally dislike funny books. To those people we say, keep far away from As I Live and Breathe by John Weaver. This book is not only funny ha-ha but it is also clever and that is an enjoyable combination to this librarian. If you were born lacking an Irish grandfather, you may not like it. You pay your taxes and you takes your choice.

Milk mockery is what Phyllis McGinley says she used when she wrote the sketches which make up her new book The Province of the Heart. In it she lauds life in the suburbs. Most of these sketches appear in magazines. You should here pick up the ones you missed by reading the wrong magazines.

Anne Fogarty's book called Wife Dressing seems to be a very practical thing and worth while reading. She gives a lot of quick tips toward good grooming which seem sound and not too expensive. There's always that business about the cost of things looming in the foreground. Cost cools a lot of books on fashion for many of us.

We really have a collection of good books this week. Start your year's reading with a trip to the library for a good new book. Enjoy yourself.

MARION BROWN SPEAKER FOR UNITY

Marion Brown, president of the Unity Ministers' Association, will speak at the House of Four Winds Auditorium, 540 Calle Principal, Monterey, on Wednesday evening at 8:00 o'clock. Her subject will be Clear Your Channel. She is the minister of the Unity Church in Bremerton, Washington, and has also been on the teaching staff at Unity Training School, Lee's Summit, Missouri. Her experience as minister, teacher and special advocate have made her talks welcomed in many cities.

There will not be any class in Carmel on January 13. The public is invited to the lecture and next class on January 20.

Bolet, Cuban Pianist, Showed Speed And Skill In Music Society Concert But Was Lacking In Poetry.

BY EBEN WHITTLESEY

The Carmel Music Society started the new year Tuesday evening with a tall and powerful pianist, Jorge Bolet, who hails from Cuba. He brought with him a Baldwin piano which he labored with great force and occasional brilliance through a program of unusual content. We are told this artist played the piano for Crescendo, a movie based on the life of Franz Liszt.

Naturally Mr. Bolet cannot appear without playing a good deal of Liszt, whose music is not as popular material for the concert stage as it once was. It is music that is richly colored in the romantic tradition, and requires a certain virtuosity for best effect. This artist played the Liszt selections with clean execution and great facility. The music is not subtle; it requires speed and brilliance, which Mr. Bolet provided, along with sheer power. We were graciously spared the Hungarian Rhapsodies in favor of "Consolation" in D flat Major, La Campanella; Un Sospiro, and finally the paraphrase on the quartet from Rigoletto. The last was unfamiliar to me, and seemed a strange number with which to end the concert. The very familiar Consolation was played with softness and restraint; Un Sospiro was fluent with smooth runs and trills; good movie music.

Before the concert started I was pleased to know we were to hear all four Chopin Ballades, not too frequently heard as a group. They were disappointing. At first I liked what seemed a straightforward, clear and forthright style. Soon it appeared that the poetry, mystery and magic atmosphere of the Ballades was lacking. Mr. Bolet has plenty of pianistic skill and speed, but the tempo seemed to get away from him at times.

The second Ballade, in F Major, opened gently, but once it had risen to forte, it seemed to stay there and to lose the effect of contrast. The third, in A Flat Major got off to a jerky start and never attained a feeling of poise. The rhythmic figures were over-emphasized, timing was not good, and I missed the effect of eloquent and dramatic pauses so characteristic of Chopin. Finally the F Minor Ballade was brought to a sparkling conclusion with much facility but not too much meaning. The artist displays great power at times, but his tone at forte is frequently harsh.

Mozart's Sonata in D Major, K 576, is music of great color and was played with impressive dexterity. The slow movement attained a certain gentleness. On the whole, however, Mozart did not come to life. Where there should have been joy there was jerkiness, where there should have been grace there was flippancy. Judging by the applause and by comments heard at the concert, this writer's opinion was not shared by all those present. Two familiar encores closed the program. The first was a familiar Schubert, I believe entitled Du Bist Die Ruhe, which was followed by the Chopin Etude on the black keys.

The public is invited to this first meeting of the year.

Mrs. Roberts presently directs crafts at Fort Myer, Virginia. Her one-man show at Doris Birkland Art Studio on Cannery Row gives evidence of the versatility of her talents, not only in ceramics but in weaving and enamels.

The first exhibit of the year in the Carmel Crafts Guild case in the Harrison Memorial Library is made up of the work of Miss Alma Anderson, resident of Carmel and member of the Guild. A retired member of the Art faculty of Northern Illinois University, Miss Anderson is also a member of the Padre Trails Camera Club, Arena Blanca Poetry Club, she is also a water colorist and print maker as well as a weaver.

Her exhibits, which will be changed at the library during January, will illustrate the new interest in textures and in creative designs of handwoven fabrics suitable for suits, coats, and other useful articles.

Judith Bruggeman Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Bruggeman announced the engagement of their daughter, Judith Ann, to Lieutenant Elbert Lee Fryberger Jr. at a supper party on Sunday evening. The young couple plan to be married early in June and will live in Carmel for a year while Lieutenant Fryberger completes his second year of naval engineering studies at the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School.

Judy is a graduate of Newton High School in New Jersey and The Principia in Elsah, Illinois. She did postgraduate work in education at San Francisco State College before working for two years for the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. This year she is teaching in Lompoc and is planning her marriage to coincide with the end of the school year and her fiance's end of semester break this summer.

Her father is president of the Monterey Peninsula Television Cable Company and she has a brother, Fred Bruggeman, a student at Monterey Peninsula College.

Lieutenant Fryberger graduated from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1954. His parents are Captain Elbert Lee Fryberger (USN-Ret.) and Mrs. Fryberger of San Luis Obispo. Captain Fryberger is now on the faculty of California Polytechnic Institute.

Immediately after graduating from Annapolis, Lieutenant Fryberger served a tour of duty as commanding officer of a destroyer and minesweeper in southern waters then was commanding officer of the USS Worland (PCE-845), part of the Great Lakes Reserve Training Squadron.

To Winter Near Phoenix

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Graft came back to Carmel just before New Year's after two holiday weeks in Arizona. They rented a house two miles from Scottsdale, near Phoenix, and leave next week to spend the winter there. They plan one trip to Carmel before the summer months. They may spend the summer in the mountains near Flagstaff, Arizona.

Mr. Graft was for many years owner of the Carmel Dairy which he sold to Borden's.

Pat Grimshaws Have A Son

On the last day of 1959, William Patrick Grimshaw was born at the Monterey Hospital with a birth weight of nine pounds, two ounces. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Leonard Grimshaw. He has a sister, Terri Anne, two years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Grimshaw of Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Googins of Monterey are his grandparents.

Miss De Camp To Live Here

Miss Joy De Camp of Boonton, New Jersey, has come to Carmel to live and at present is making her home with her brother, Lieutenant Colonel C. A. De Camp.

During World War I, Miss De Camp volunteered for overseas service with a French women's unit. Later she was assigned to be an assistant to the late General James Guthrie Harbord, chief of staff American Expeditionary Force in France (1917-18), commander of service supply in France (1918-19), then again chief of staff AEF in 1918. Because of Miss De Camp's knowledge of French and German, she censored enemy prisoner-of-war letters for General Harbord's staff.

Later, Miss De Camp was on the staff of Colonel Edward Mandell House at the World War I Peace Conference. Colonel House represented the United States in the peace negotiations and then was a member of the commission which drew up the covenant of the League of Nations. Miss De Camp remained in Paris for five years after the end of World War I, then came back to the United States to become chief cataloger for the American Institute of Art in New York City.

In New Jersey, Miss De Camp was an active member of the Morris County League of Women Voters. Of interest to her is the fact that Mrs. Harbord, widow of General Harbord, is a Carmel resident.

Chaffey's In Venezuela

Mr. and Mrs. John Chaffey left recently by boat for Venezuela where they spent the Christmas and New Year's holidays. They will be back in two weeks' time.

Here For 20th Winter

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hoffmaster of Traverse City, Michigan, have arrived to spend their twentieth winter in Carmel. Mrs. Hoffmaster (Maud Miller Hoffmaster) is an internationally known artist, author, lecturer and teacher. She has received many awards and citations for achievements in her several fields. She organized the art department at the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Michigan, and supervised it for 14 years. During that time she designed and and built the beautiful art study hall at the camp. Mr. Hoffmaster, now retired, owned and operated a golf course in Traverse City for many years. The Hoffmasters have taken an apartment at the Oak Tree Lodge on Mission Street for the winter.

Return After Ten Years

This past week Carmel friends have been recalling former episodes with Rex McBride of Eureka. This is the first time in ten years that Mr. McBride has been here and looked up friends made during the time he lived on Carmel Point and later on Mission Street. His son, Jon, is in charge of the McBride ranches in Humboldt County enabling Mr. McBride to leave long enough to visit Carmel again.

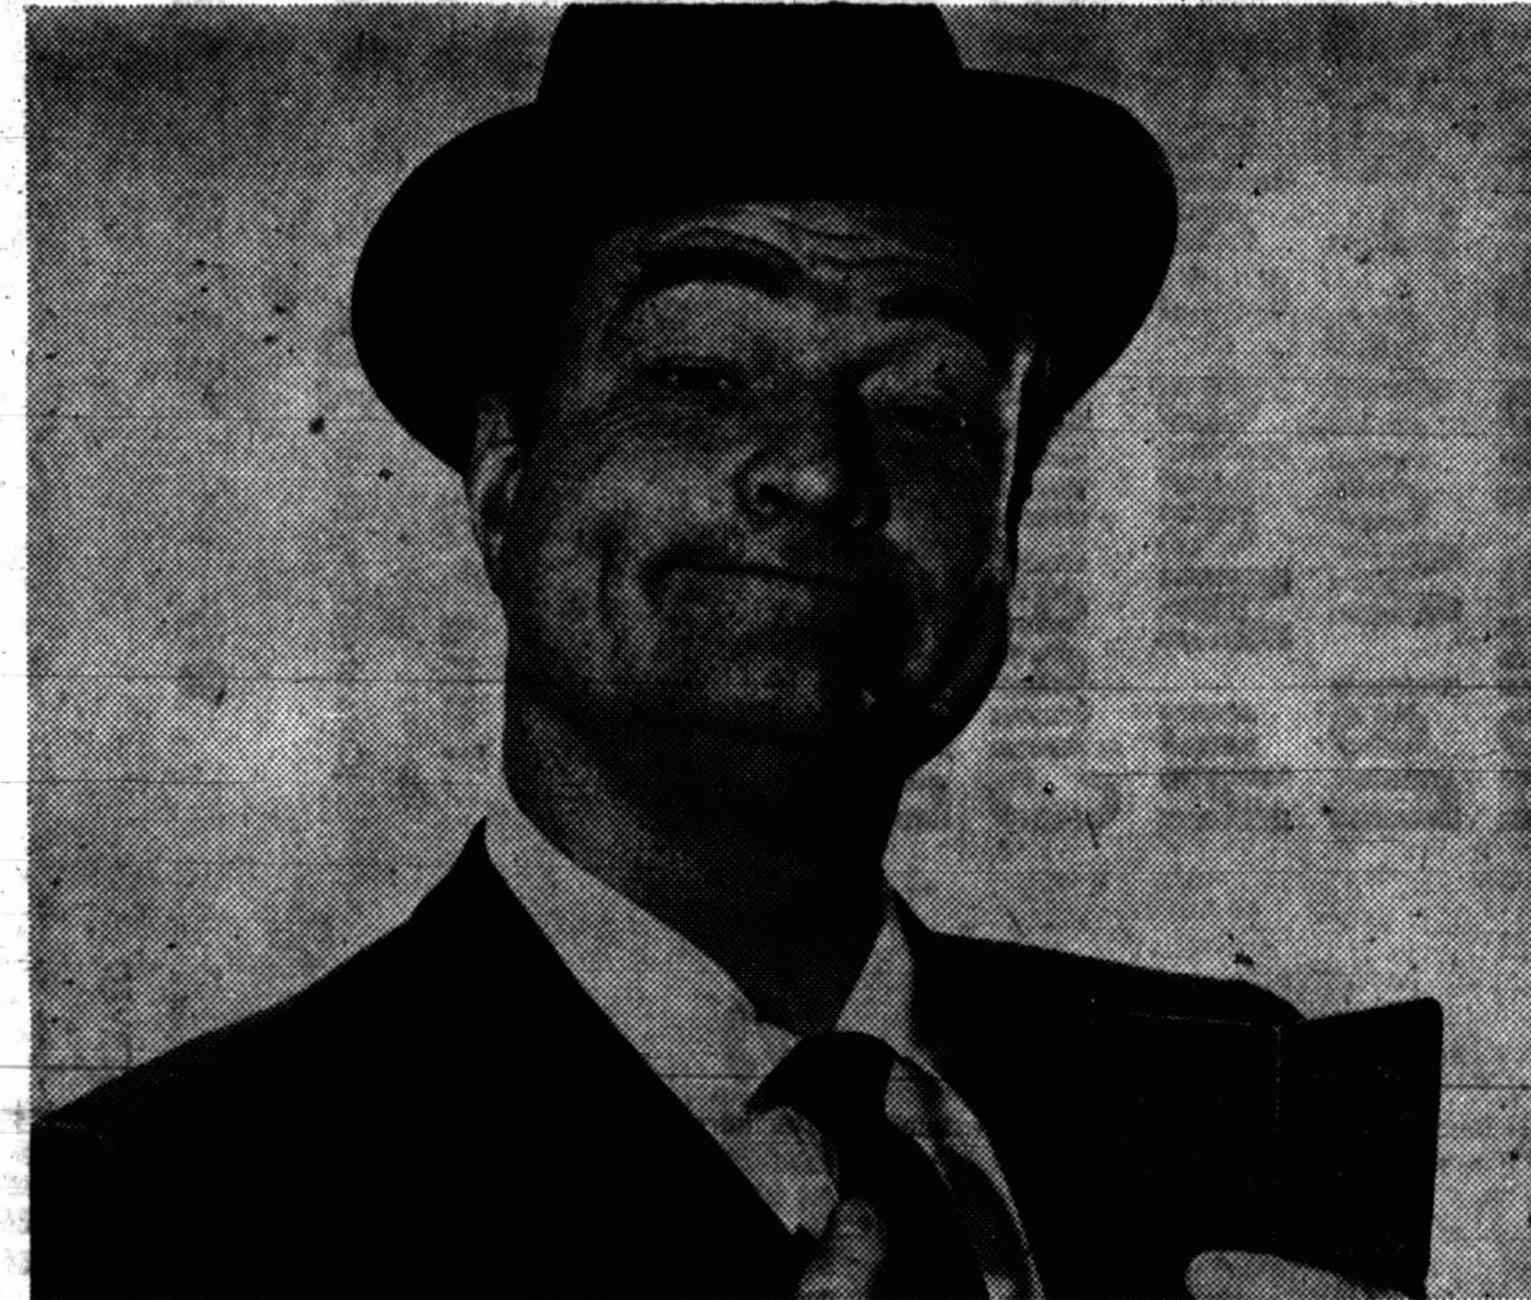

The other two McBride boys, Bill and Andy, are both attending California Polytechnic Institute in San Luis Obispo.

Mary Elstob Wed Yesterday

Mary Helen Elstob, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Elstob of Carmel, and Terry Lee Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Holland of Atherton and Carmel, were married yesterday afternoon. Father George Wyatt performed the double ring ceremony in Holy Trinity Church in Menlo Park at 3:30 o'clock.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore an antique white satin dress. The fitted bodice had a high round neck and three-quarter length sleeves. The ankle-length skirt increased in fullness towards the back where it extended into a pointed hemline. Her Duchess lace veil, which fell to the hemline of the dress, was the same worn by the groom's great-grandmother at her wedding. Her only jewelry, a pearl brooch, formerly belonged to the bride's great-grandmother.

Lacy Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meade Williams of Carmel, was maid of honor in a turquoise taffeta gown and a flower headress.

Flowergirl was Sally Ann Elstob, niece of the bride and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Paige Elstob of Pacific Grove, formerly of London. She was dressed in a pink peau de soie frock with a black velvet bodice and flower headband.

Best man was the groom's brother, Charles Holland.

Mrs. Elstob, the bride's mother, attended the wedding wearing a black velvet cocktail suit, matching hat and a white orchid corsage.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Holland, was dressed in a blue silk cocktail suit with matching hat and white orchid corsage.

The reception following the marriage was held in the home of the groom's parents in Atherton. Attending from Carmel were Mrs. Paul Budd and her daughters, Carla and Nicki; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Draper and their daughter, Wendy, a freshman at the University of California; Mrs. Henry Meade Williams, mother of the maid of honor; Dr. and Mrs. Vincent O'Connor and their daughter, Connie; Susie Mosolf, Patricia Timothy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forbes, Mrs. Walter Nielsen, Mrs. John Redhead, Miss Margaret Peasley, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Parnell Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McEwen, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Leidig and Miss Eloise Rainer.

The bride's godmother, Mrs. Lawrence Flaws of Santa Monica, and Mr. Flaws went to Menlo Park for the ceremony. Her godfather, Reginald Rumwell of Palo Alto, and Mrs. Rumwell, witnessed the marriage, also the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Charles Driver of Palm Springs.

During the reception, the bride's older sister, Mrs. Michael Sherman, (Lucy Elstob) telephoned from Ithaca, New York, where her husband is in his junior year at Cornell University.

The bride and groom flew East to Hanover, New Hampshire, and will live on the campus at Dartmouth College where the groom is in his sophomore year.

The bride was born in New York City but moved to Piedmont when she was three years old. She attended Beach School in that city before coming to Carmel and entering Sunset School. She attended Stratford House, Beckenham, Surrey, England, Santa Catalina School for Girls in Monterey, and graduated from Carmel High School in June. In September she entered the University of California at Los Angeles and was a Chi Omega sorority pledge.

P-TA Panel Program On Adoption

The Carmel Elementary P-TA program on Tuesday night in Sunset School cafeteria at 8:00 o'clock will be a panel discussion on adoptions and adopted children.

The P-TA and the Children's Home Society, California adoption agency, are jointly sponsoring the meeting. Members of both groups are urged to attend.

Charles Fox Retires

Charles I. Fox of Carmel retired from the position of superintendent of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company's Moss Landing power plant on New Year's Day. He has a 28-foot Monterey type fishing boat and intends to spend time in the future fishing both for sport and commercially.

Mr. Fox was born in Hanford and joined the P. G. & E. as a machinist in 1930, helping erect a high-pressure steam-electric plant in San Francisco. He remained there in plant operations until he became a watch engineer at the Avon power plant in 1940. From 1941-1944, Mr. Fox was relief foreman at the Martinez power plant, then was Oleum power plant foreman until his transfer to Moss Landing as relief foreman in 1949.

He and his wife, Anna, have a son, Bennett, who is married and lives in Los Angeles.

San Ysidro Vacation

Mr. J. William Mac Lennan and Mrs. Mac Lennan (E. Cashion Mac Lennan) have returned to Carmel after spending the Christmas holidays at San Ysidro Ranch in the foothills of Montecito. They were joined by Mr. Mac Lennan's brother and his wife, the E. A. Mac Lennans of Santa Monica.

While there, they enjoyed the many festive ranch activities, including an eggnog party on Christmas Eve when leis and orchids flown from Hawaii were given to guests drawing the lucky numbers, and Christmas carols were sung led by Dale Weingand, the manager, whose rendering of A Partridge in a Pear Tree was outstanding. As the weather was warm and pleasant, the luncheons at the pool were happy and gay events. Other events included music by the pianist, Thomas Glinski; an exhibition of riding by the young riders; and visits with old friends in Santa Barbara, and in Montecito where the Mac Lennans lived for many years on Mimosa Lane.

Woman Dies After Big Sur Accident

Mrs. Frieda Nielsen of State's Hot Springs was killed on New Year's Eve in an automobile accident on Highway 1 below Big Sur. She was travelling south when her car hit an embankment and rolled on its right side. Mrs. Nielsen was wedged between the steering wheel and seat and could not be removed before a tow truck arrived. She was taken to the Peninsula Community Hospital in the Big Sur volunteer ambulance but was pronounced dead on arrival.

She is survived by her husband, Robert E. Nielsen, and a son from a previous marriage, now living in Los Angeles.

Chinese Carvings Show

Miss Pauline Benton of Carmel whose interest in and knowledge of various phases of Chinese art have been demonstrated locally since she came to live here, will show at The Carmel Foundation Town House on Wednesday afternoon some Oriental stone rubbings. Some of these are from Chinese stone carvings of the Han dynasty, dating back 2,000 years; some from the Tang dynasty 1,000 years ago; others are Siamese rubbings from temple stones in Bangkok. Miss Benton will show how these ancient stone carvings were the forerunners of printed characters, and the rubbings part of the origin of the printing process which began in China. The program begins at 3:00 o'clock and will be followed by tea and a social hour.

Editorial . . .

We have a request to write an editorial urging dog owners to curb their pets when they take them walking in the business district. We asked the petitioner if he wanted the editorial we wrote last year, or preferred the one we wrote the year before, or before, or before. He said he didn't care, so long as we said something: "Just look at this filth! appeal to their better natures."

The futility of appealing to the better natures of dog owners! They are a race apart.

It sometimes works to remind them that there is a city ordinance which requires them to curb their dogs; that failure to do so is a misdemeanor involving arrest and fine.

We suggest that the motorcycle patrolman, who is in a position to see the violations occur, make a few arrests.

"WHERE TOWN AND COUNTRY SHOPPER MEET"

Public Debate Monday On Fenton Gas Pumps

City Attorney John Morse told the commission that they might receive the application if they were to find substantial differences between the new plans and those concerned with the gas station in the underground garage of last spring. The commission decided that the new project was "substantially different" and will rule at the January 20 meeting whether or not the service station is an accessory use, and allowable in a part of town where service stations, as such, are not allowed.

Thomas Montgomery, attorney for Dale Leidig, protested, and if the planning commission rules that the gas station is an accessory use, there is little doubt that their decision will be appealed to the city council.

The Citizens Committee will present another speaker, Miss Charlotte Townsend who will explain the functions and duties of the California Highway Commission, the highway engineers and the state department of interior.

Admiral C. W. Fisher, chairman of the organization, will display and explain the plans for a proposed civic center on Junipero between Fourth and Fifth.

(Continued from Page One) to amount to anything in December; if we don't have any in January, we won't have any in February, and then there won't be any water in the damn dams."

You've been hearing from us, and any other California newspaper you choose to read, how broke the State Division of Beaches and Parks is this year because about $20,000,000 Beaches and Parks money was vanity-spent to prepare Squaw Valley for an Olympic holiday. The B and P funds are so depleted that the acquisition program has been cut in half on paper and appears to be cut off at the shoetops in actuality.

But some money they must have because the December Issue of B and P magazine outlines a schedule of improvements and development (campgrounds, roads, boat piers, etc.)

Improving the existing parks is necessary in many cases to make them usable but it isn't essential. The parks will still be there when, if ever, the B and P recovers from the Squaw Valley raid on its funds. The land for new acquisition won't. Or in cases where it is, it is not likely to remain unimpaired.

For instance, it seems more important to buy, now, the Little Sur land which has been on the county master plan and approved by the state for about five years, before the owners start lumbering activities along the Little Sur, than to build a natural history museum at Morro Bay State Park.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

Those Were The Days

On New Year's Day 1920, Carmel had a baseball game according to the January 8, 1920, issue of the Pine Cone.

"Two teams of local business men struggled for supremacy on the old golf course. Oh boy! You should have seen Bob Leidig sliding on his face in an endeavor to catch a foul ball. Fred Leidig had a lot of curves on the ball but the curves were more noticeable after the batter hit the ball. A feature of the game was the absence of gloves. A long recess was taken while the ball was dug out of a gopher hole."

The same issue has an editorial comment on beach conditions. "There is much complaint about persons who make a practice of dumping garbage on the beach. No excuse for this. The city has a garbage collector. Why litter up our splendid white beach—one of the city's principal assets?"

Street Superintendent William Askew Jr. just two weeks ago in the Pine Cone asked Santa Claus to help him free the beach from garbage dumping, still a serious problem on Carmel beach after 40 years.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The great example of love and sacrifice given by Christ Jesus and the good which results from following this example in daily life will be emphasized Sunday at Christian Science services.

Readings from the Bible in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Sacrament" will include the account in Matthew of the healing by Jesus of the lad who was "unconscious, and sore vexed."

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include the following (4:3-9): "What we most need is the prayer of fervent desire for growth in grace, expressed in patience, meekness, love, and good deeds. To keep the commandments of our Master and follow his example, is our proper debt to him and the only worthy evidence of our gratitude for all that he has done."

The Golden Text is from John (6:33): "The bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world."

FRIDAY IS "F" DAY

THE PENINSULA WILL NEVER BE THE SAME WHEN, "MY UNCLE,
MR. HULOT," AND THOSE BELLES
OF ST. TRINIAN'S ARRIVE!

TWO of the most outrageously
FILMS ever put on the same program!

Those little girls
from
"that school" are back in a flood of fun, descending on the countryside, like "Atilla the Hun," armed with larceny and laughing gas—one more gem in the British comedy
crown
